AN UNCOMPROMISING VIRTUAL EVENT COVERING AFRICAN EXPORT AND PROJECT FINANCE

We are experiencing an extraordinary moment in history. As a result of the spread of the Covid-19 virus, global financial markets are currently unable to conduct business in person and high quality avenues for business development are now in short supply. But fear not! As proud and reliable conveners of international export and project finance markets, we at TXF are fully committed to continuing our duty and are proud to announce a brand new, premium, fully virtual event covering African export & project finance.

TXF Africa 2020 Virtual will not only match any physical event in terms of quality and service, but gives you access to a broader audience than ever before. Our feature-rich hybrid conference experience will place attendees at the forefront of their industry, not only as the best informed and connected, but driving the future of industry.

Whether you are in Africa - a region well-known for technological leapfrogging - or overseas, this event will attract a greater international audience interested in African export and commodities finance than could ever be expected at a physical event.

Preceded by three sets of pre-released content plus networking services, the main live event on April 30th will host the majority of our carefully curated content, delivered across a series of interviews, keynotes, networking services and more.

We can't wait to see you!

DEAL ANALYSIS

Today we're sharing a series of exemplary deals that are underway across the African continent. Hear directly from dealmakers and learn how best to structure transactions in what can be a challenging market.

Case study: The Abidjan Metro

Cote D'Ivoire's most hotly anticipated project, the Abidjan Metro, is finally making progress. We gather senior deal-makers to analyze:

- How is the project being financed?
- What challenges have deal-makers faced along the way?
- What innovative solutions are in place to position the Metro as a template for future large-scale infrastructure projects in Africa?

Alain Descamps, Chairman, STAR

Interviewed by
Tom Nelthorpe, Contributing Editor, TXF

11:00 GMT+1/BST

Case study: Riverme

Water supply projects are crucial for the sustainable development of African cities such as Abidjan. We take an in-depth look at Riverme, a $250 million hybrid financing that closed last year, to explore how best to approach transactions of this type. We consider the importance of a varied financial structure that combines export finance, local, regional and cross-border elements, including:

- Riverme's ECA backed tranche
- Multilateral involvement on the deal from IDB and BOAD
- Structuring a local currency tranche

Fadel Kane, Managing Director, Head Capital Markets & Structured Finance Group for Sub-Saharan Africa, Societe Generale

Randolph Fotso, Director Export Finance - Africa, Societe Generale

11:40 GMT+1/BST

Case study: EKF on financing wind projects

Considered both social and sustainable by TXF's methodology, the Taiba N'Diaye wind farm in Senegal represents a landmark west African deal for EKF. We're joined by dealmakers to discuss:

- Challenges faced when financing this renewable energy project
- Nuances of the Senegalese market that needed to be considered
- Lessons learned for future large scale projects of this kind

Kurt Martin Larsen, Head of Onshore Wind, EKF

Fostering collaboration: A roadmap to intra-African trade

Since the formation of the World Trade Organisation, the Africa Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA) has been the largest of its kind. Comprising 54 of the 55 African nations, AfCFTA demonstrates countries' willingness to collaborate and boost intra-African trade. This, paired with success in the ECOWAS region, show that Africa is coming closer to its free trade goals. However, it is unclear when we will start to see the fruits of the agreement or whether it will remain a pipe dream. For example, many African nations demonstrate a stringent nationalism which is at odds with AfCFTA's goals – Nigeria, for instance, has closed its borders. Our panel of experts discusses whether AfCFTA will boost business if made tangible, or if lengthy documentation and prohibitive tariffs will remain a hindrance:

- What would AfCFTA mean for international exporters, banks and ECAs if we see it come to fruition?
- How should you proceed with your operations in the interim between AfCFTA's ratification and tangible results? Realistically, when will we start to see projects emerging under AfCFTA's remit?
- What actions do African governments and agencies need to take to make AfCFTA a reality?

Alarik D'Ornhjelm, Head of Structured Trade & Export Finance, MEA, Deutsche Bank

Duarte Pedreira, Head of Emerging and Frontier Market FIs, Head of Trade Finance, Crown Agents Bank

SOUTHERN AFRICA FOCUS

Today we focus on Southern Africa, interviewing one of the region's top borrowers and hosting by an exclusive, interactive idea lab for businesses active in this region.

Power up: Taking on Africa's challenged utilities

Many of Africa's energy utilities are state-owned companies that can be monopolistic; this can lead to significant disruption to energy distribution. None has felt the pressure more than Eskom. In this keynote interview, we ask:

- Why has Eskom had so many challenges and what are their plans to improve the business model?
- What role should the private sector play in African utilities?
- What questions do you have to pose directly to Eskom?

Calib Cassim, CFO, Eskom

11:00 GMT+1/BST

Idea lab: Focus on Southern Africa

This interactive, virtual idea lab gathers businesses active across Southern Africa to discuss some of the region's most pressing concerns and, perhaps more importantly, opportunities:

- What are the most active investment sectors in Southern Africa today?
- Even before the Covid-19 outbreak, Southern Africa presented unique risks to companies. How is your business finding flexible ways of remaining active in a challenging region?
- How is the industry adapting to remote working? Is Southern Africa ready to digitise?

KEYNOTE CORNER

Today's content brings together high-powered keynotes from some of the top borrowing nations in Africa.

Focus on: Ghana

Eyes have been turned to Ghana when it comes to international investment and, according to data from tagmydeals, is a hub for social deals. Our expert insider discusses:

- Sectors prime for investment in Ghana
- The latest on public utility ECG's appointment of the private PDS
- Expectations for growth in Ghana over the coming years

Seth Terkper, Former Minister of Finance, Ghana

11:00 GMT+1/BST

ECA in focus: Supporting exporters through Covid-19

What with the restrictions to daily life brought about by the coronavirus outbreak, exporters need more support from their ECAs than ever before. Pedro Novo joins us from his garden to talk us through Bpifrance's plans to:

- Even further bolster support for SME customers
- Promote French exports abroad, particularly in West Africa
- Continue to look out for French exporters across the board

Pedro Novo, Executive Director, Bpifrance

11:20 GMT+1/BST

Exporters' revue: Perspectives from international exporters

With significant projects on the horizon, Africa offers many opportunities to international exporters. Although it can be a challenging market to navigate, the rewards are more than worth it.

- What do exporters want from ECA products and how can agencies tailor their offerings to suit the African market?
- How do exporters get comfortable with tender to contract FX risk? Do they hedge, and if so with what implements?
- What creative solutions have exporters found to dealing with the nuances of the African market?
- Whilst West Africa's currency has shifted from the CFA Franc to the Eco, it's still pegged to the Euro. What impact will this have for international exporters seeking financing on African projects?

Alexandre Fontanaud, Managing Director, Ferrostaal Equipment Solutions France SAS

Angelica Adamski, Director of the Board, Sweden-Africa Chamber

Terry Makhubele, Senior Regional Manager - Africa, EDC

VIRTUAL: EXPORT & PROJECT FINANCE

The main event! Join us live for a full day of carefully researched content delivered in a fun, engaging way by deal making experts in the region alongside TXF's hugely experienced team. Make sure you sign into the networking tool and see who's on a session with you! 🗨️

Breakfast briefing: Supporting UK business in Africa

Kick off the day by having breakfast with the world's first ECA, UK Export Finance (UKEF). The team will provide an update on how UKEF is supporting UK business into Africa, including:

- Competitive and flexible finance that help businesses in Africa
- Government-backed insurance and guarantees enabling UK Exporters to win contracts, fulfil orders and get paid
- A live Q&A covering how UKEF can directly support your business

Steve Gray, International Export Finance Executive, Western Africa, UKEF

Michele Dee, Business Origination Regional Head, UKEF

David Priestly, Head of Export Finance Managers and Business Group Operations, UKEF

Welcoming remarks

Welcome to TXF Africa 2020 Virtual! At TXF, we've been pushing the boundaries with online platforms since our inception in 2013. From tagmydeals, our independent user-generated deals database, to innovative events – we're delighted that you've been here to support us along the way.

Hesham Zakai, Managing Director, TXF

11:10 GMT+1/BST

Risk Forecasting in Uncertain Times: Country Risk and COVID-19 in Africa

As confirmed COVID-19 cases and deaths in Africa continue to rise, we take a look at the country risk implications of the virus in Africa. Key issues that will be explored include:

- An assessment of the ten African countries at highest risk of COVID-19 impact, as per EXX Africa's newly-developed methodology
- A review of the political, social and security impacts to expect over the coming year, such as:
  - The postponement of elections and prospect for political instability
  - The rise in conflict related incidents as militants look to exploit vulnerabilities
  - The potential for social instability as public services face additional strain

Keri Leicher, Director, Consulting Relations, EXX Africa

ECA & DFI collaboration: The key to African deals?

When political risk is high, ECA and DFI backing are incredibly popular. Many deals necessitate support from both types of agency, meaning that collaboration is vital – but this can complicate deal structuring.

- What exemplary cases of financial collaboration have we seen on African deals across 2019 and 2020?
- 2019 has seen an increase in ECAs offering direct lending facilities. How does this play into the overall deal structure and opportunities for collaboration?
- In the wake of the 2008 financial crisis, demand for the ECA product soared. Will the ECA industry see the same resurgence following Covid-19?

Hoda Moustafa, Africa Regional Head, MIGA

Maelia Dufour, Director - International Relations, Bpifrance

Dave Chalila, Head of Sub-Saharan Africa, SACE

Sujithav Sarangi, Executive Director, Project & Export Finance, Standard Chartered

Craig Weitz, Principal: Export Credit Finance, Nedbank

Moderator:
Koen Ceyssens, SVP Export Finance Middle East & Africa, BNP Paribas

12:35 GMT+1/BST

Covid-19: The credit insurance response

The spread of the coronavirus has spun the market into unprecedented conditions. But how is the credit insurance market reacting? We look at the latest research from the Berne Union to consider:

- What are ECAs offering their clients to bolster national exports during these challenging times?
- How is the private insurance market responding?
- What support can the African region expect from credit insurers whilst the pandemic rages on?

Vinco David, Secretary General, Berne Union

13:00

Networking coffee break

Pop the kettle on, grab a cup of coffee and get ready to network. For the next hour, we'll set you up in groups of industry professionals who are keen to do business. This may be an informal chat, but we know that this is where business origination kicks off.

14:00 GMT+1/BST

Moving ahead: Opportunities in rail & road

Transport and infrastructure development are priorities not for ministries across the continent. However, it's no secret that getting large-scale infrastructure projects off the ground in Africa presents a plethora of unique challenges. We assess:

- What templates can a big-ticket, multi-sourced deal like Nacala provide for future large-scale projects across the continent?
- Why is dealmaker collaboration so important to get the perfect balance on African infrastructure projects?
- Why does rail and road infrastructure remain a vital, lucrative sector for investors into Africa?

Dominique Aubert, Vice President Acquisition & Rep. Lausanne office, SERV

Michael Creighton, Executive Director Financial Solutions, Willis Tower Watson

Jim Dutton, Regional Head for Africa, Bechtel

Moderator:
Paule Gosset, Vice President Export & Agency Finance Africa, Commerzbank

Idea labs: Infrastructure

According to TXF Data, infrastructure remains Africa's biggest sector when it comes to export finance. Join 20 of your industry peers in an intimate roundtable discussion to consider the most productive methods for financing large scale infrastructure projects on the continent

Tom Nelthorpe, Contributing Editor, Proximo

Alexandre Fontanaud, Managing Director, Ferrostaal Equipment Solutions France SAS

15:10 GMT+1/BST

Energise: Powering African communities

Many African countries rely on expensive fossil fuels as their main source of power, yet the World Bank estimates a saving of USD $5-8 billion per year from improving integrated power trade. This would increase access to accessible, reliable power with lower CO2 emissions. As well as dealing with costly and emission heavy fuel, Africa grapples with the challenges of connecting rural communities to the grid. We consider the innovative solutions in play to improve Africa's connection to the grid:

- Which energy sources will dominate the mix in the coming years and therefore promise rich return on investment?
- How can we balance urgent demand for affordable power with the global need for clean energy? Will battery storage play a role?
- Which nuances of the African market must be considered when putting together a large-scale power project in the region?

Mahamane Sow, Managing Director Cote D'Ivoire, EDF

Massaer Cisse, Managing Director, Lekela Power Senegal

Stephen Ozoigbo, Founder, African Technology Foundation

Ralph Gunn, Manager, Standard Bank

Moderator:
George Oluwande, Former CEO, Sahara Energy Group

Idea labs: Energy

Ensuring sustainable, reliable energy supply for African countries is paramount. In these interactive roundtables, you'll be able to join 20 industry leaders to workshop the most effective ways to meet Africa's ambitious energy goals over the coming years.

Looking to the future: Sustaining growth in Africa

According to a recent report by TXF Data, 14.1% of all sustainable deals done in 2019 were closed in Africa. Our experts consider the types of projects that will promote sustainable development across the continent and probe the financial structures needed to support them:

- Which innovative infrastructure technologies are being rolled out across Africa and why are they so important for continued development?
- What solutions could prioritise local development whilst also benefiting the environment?
- Why are resilient city structures so important for Africa's development and how should these projects be financed?

Anne Crepin, Deputy Head of Export Credit, SFIL

Michał Łupkowski, International Relationship Director, LUG Light Factory

Samuel Alemahyu, Managing Director, Cambridge Industries

Antonio Sala, Executive Director Export & Agency Finance, Santander
